I don't think that we are in the boundary of the Snake River Aquifer. The lava flow that covers the area between here and there is so great and also makes a barrier, no one knows where the water goes. I don't think the mapping model is accurate. until they can tell us where and how long it takes to get there. The Lost River Valley's contribution to the Steady State is not near the ten percent I.D.W.R. keeps talking about.

To take our water will be devastating to the Lost River Valley. When the settlers came to Idaho they knew mother nature would give them either plenty of water or not enough and they would have to deal with it in time. Now we are dealing with Communist water politics. The big guy with all the money can come in and strong arm whoever for what ever they want.
