Idaho Water Summit planned Aug. 7 at the Idaho Statehouse

BOISE - (July 3, 2023) – The Idaho Water Resource Board will host an Idaho Water Summit on Monday, Aug. 7, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., in the Lincoln Auditorium at the Idaho Statehouse in Boise.

The public, water users and all interested parties are invited and encouraged to attend.

The Idaho Water Resource Board is holding the summit at the direction of Idaho Gov. Brad Little to discuss pressing water resource matters across the state.

An agenda and more details will be forthcoming.

About the Idaho Water Resource Board: The Board is responsible for the formulation and implementation of the State Water Plan, financing of water projects, and the operation of programs that support sustainable management of Idaho’s water resources. The board meets six times a year around the state, and holds special meetings, as needed, to address water resource issues.
